ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 19.-The silver men who yesterday left the national Republican convention issued a mani-festo to-day. It is in part as follows: To the People of the United States:

Obeying the call of duty, and justified by the common citizenship of this republic, we address this communication to the people and the forthcoming convention, of the United States. In doing so we claim no authority or right of other than which belongs to every man to express personal conviction; but we respectfully solicit the co-operation of all who believe that the time has come for a return to the simpler and more direct method of naming men for na-tional service than has obtained in re-oent years.

for a return to the simpler and more direct michod of naming men for national service than has obtained in recent years.

Political party organization is necessary fecause without it the individual yoter if dumb; but the party is only the means, not the end; it is the voice and not the sense. As the world advances in tilis wonderful epoch of intellectual development and physical improvement there is a constant requirement for better fixings. The individual feels that requirement and heeds it or he fails in life's endeavor. Parties must also obey the same law. It follows, therefore, that the moment a party shall choose to/stand still or to retrogress it is no longer efficient to achieve the end to which the people are necessarily destined. There is no sanctity in mere, party name; and the mark of decay is set on individual strength in a nation, when the absolute rule of political organization coerces man from the truth for the sake of expedency and establishes insincere submission to partisan rule for the sake of power.

Recognizing the values and the splendid achievements of political parties in this country, as elsewhere, we are yet constrained to believe that for more than twenty years no one of them has been entirely sufficient for the needs of the people. The great trend to better things, resting in the heart and purpose of all men, has been stopped during the latter part of this generation by the failure of parties. And there has been growing in this country—swelling with each four years. In 1872 the Republican party elected the President; in 1884 the Democrats elected; in 1885 the Republicans elected; in 1885 the Republicans elected; in 1885 the Republican party elected that the Republican would elect. What has been the cause of this mighty oscillation of a mass which this year has probably obtained controlling proportions? Evergman can answer to himself. If he has been an observer, if he has had interests that we of a mass which this year has probably obtained controlling proportions? Every man can answer to himself. If he has been an observer, if he has had interests that were affected, if he has felt a hope to see greater justice done and has seen that hope blasted; if he knows that the general dissatisfaction has arisen from the fact that party promises made were broken to the people by party performance he knows that so soon as the election was over and successful candidates installed they became the servitors of the party and the advocates of a narrow and non progressive policy within which alone there seemed to be an assurance of selfah safety and partisan put forward in an effective way. we in all the departments of physical it there have been developments a schievements of ease and comfort to favored of mankind, in the still greated more important domain of socretors we have stood still or ret

It is not merely as the exponent of mosetary reform that we present this min to the people. It is true that he has wared a mighty war for the restortation of the money of the constitution and his name has been identified as that of no other living man with this great cause. But had his services been see demanded and less noticed in this direction, the people would still have recognized in him for other labors a stateman of the purest type. His only poverty has been that of pures, in all things else—in the generosities of man to man, in kindliness of deeds for his delows, and in the study and the dolines of a mighty career, he has been one of the most opulent American elicities of any age. In submitting this mine to the people we point out that just a generation ago from the heart of the boundless west and touched by the mage of tool there are an emanchatory who was powerful in the work of human deliverance. Arkansas Democrats.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 19.—The Democratic state convention was in session until 2:15 a. m. this morning, the greater part of the time being taken up in a hot fight over the question of expressing a choice for presidential candidate. A resolution instructing the national delegates for Bland was vigorously opposed by Senators Jones and Berry, but was finally adopted by a vote of 420 to 327. The platform adopted made no reference to the national administration. The financial plank is as follows:

"We favor bi-metallism and to that end we insist upon the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, as money of final redemption with equal legal tender powers, independent of the action of any other nation. We are opposed to the issue of interest-bearing bonds for any purposes in time of peace."

New York Advertiser: Speaking of the unequivocal gold standard declara-tion that is slated for incorporation in the St. Louis platform, according to the forthcoming report of the committee on resolutions, the Rocky Mountain News, the St. Louis plattorin, accommittee on resolutions, the Rocky Mountain News, of Denver, says:

"If the men who formulated this plank think that its language will deceive any voter in the west they are destined in November to realise the blunder that they have made. It is the cold-bleoded monometallism of Wall street, stated in the words of the truckling and cowardly politicians."

Bless your innocent, free-coinage heart! This plank was framed to deceive nobody. The purpose was to undeceive, bondy. The purpose was to undeceive. That is what the Morning Advertiser and all the gold standard contingent have been fighting for unceasingly for the past four months—to make a straidle, an evasion, a decention impossible. We knew that a makeshit, meaningless declaration like that made at Minneapolis in 152 would be acceptable neither to the gold nor the silver advocate. We knew that the mine owners of Colorado, least of all, would put up with a straddle. In consequence, a gold plank, straight, will be adopted.

The Rocky Mountain News should be the last to file a protest against it on the ground of its deceptive character. Senators Teller and Dubois have been contending for an honest plank, one way or the other. Thoir prayers will be answered. They and the News must swallow it or bolt.

It is to be hoped that they will swallow it and stay in the party. But they can't go out under the cry of deception. The plank tiself will give their protest the lie.

A Scotch Congregation.

Listen to the Scottish congregation singing "French," or "St. Kilda," and you have heard struck the keynote of Scottish religion. The soft, melodious roll of the organ is not there, nor the painfully accurate notes of the strictly high-class choir. Yet there is a sublimity and a grandeur in those old psalm tunes of Scotland that breathe of the mountain and sen. They are a part of Scotland's heritage of the best that the psat can give—not the hest because of the artistic arrangement of notes and symphonies, but hest because of the in spiring soul of music that floats with every peach through the peaceful village church.

There is a vein of adness in them, too, through which love strikes on the hap of song a chord of glorious beauty. They are the soil of the land's relig-ion—a religion that might be described as Calvanism plus a generous amount of human sympathy. With the rising generation, however, a marked change is vielble.

BABE AS AN AUTHOR.

Six Year Old Girl Dictates a Book Sobie of the Gena, Chicago News: Myra Bradwell Helmer, of Chicago, is the youngest author in the United States, if not in the

This little six-year-old maiden has produced the most captivating book imaginable and her grandfather. Judge James B. Bradwell, has turned publisher for her sweet sake.

Few authors have so distinguished an amanuensis as this little woman, for her mother, Mrs. Bessie Bradley Helmer, the president of the Chicago Legal News Company, took the stories verbatim from her little daughter's lips. No small task, by the way, for the stories, singularly well arranged and clothed with exquisite Jimagery, came with a rush.

Extraordinarily precocious, Myra constantly wrestles with problems that have builted the keenest intellects. However, her conversation is a curious mestac of grown-up expression and phrases peculiar to a child. Possibly no better illustration is a vatishle than the following:

A day or so ago she came to her mother in great perplexity and said, withe the air of a distracted theologian:

gian:
"Mamma, there is a question that I have long been revolving in my mind and, if possible, I would like to have and, if possible, I would like to have you solve it."

"What is it, darling?"
"Well, mamma, who borned God?"
Probably she has less vanily than the average author, for, after giving the book critical examination, she exclaimed, disconsolately: "I don't think much of my stories."
"Then you have imposed on your publisher," said the judge, with pretended sternness.
The child looked at him anxiously and replied:

tended sternness.

The child looked at him anxiously and repiled:

"Well, it was for a good cause and," entreatingly, "you don't mind being defrauded when it was for the sake of the sick bables, do you?"

The book is an ea@ression of the author's personnel, for it is small and dainty to a degree rarely achieved in the bookbinder's art. Six short stories—the sum of the author's years—are between lids bound in a dull crimson brightened with gold. But perhaps the tender footnote at the close of the last story. "The Meeting of the Flowers," is symbolical of the few months which have passed since her last birthday. The note reads:

"I' made the violet win the prize because it was grandma's favorite flower cause of the relation of the prize because it was grandma's favorite flower.

cause it was grandma's favorite flower and I thought it would make her happy in heaven."

in heaven."

The grandpa thus reverently remembered is the late Mrs. Myra Bradwell founder and editor of the Chicasy Eegal News, a woman whose discriminating mind made her known in legal circles throughout the world. In her preface throughout the world. In her preface Myra says:

"I am a little girl six years old. Grandpa and mamma give me money and sometimes I put some of it in the glass globes downtown for the sick babies, but I never earn any money myself, so I thought I would make a book. I talked it and mamma wrote it down just as I talked It. Grandpa said he would have it printed and take his pay out in kisses. I'm going to take it out for the Field memorial fund. All the rest is for orphaned and sick babies. The book is twenty-five cents. I hope I will make lots of money for the orphans."

The generous wish is being granted.

I will make lots of money for the orphans."

The generous wish is being granted, for, though the book has just been issued, she has over $100 for the objects of her solicitude.

Her conclusions regarding microbes are, to say the least, unique.

Her conclusions regarding microbes are, to say the least, unique.

The fairies were sick and a doctor was summoned.

"He told the fairy godmother alla about microbes and germs and told her to boil the water. The fairy godmother asked if a hair was a fairy sidewalk for a microbe. He said 'Oh, no! They are much smaller!

"The fairy godmother said she didn't, understand. If the germ had the fever, why didn't the fever, which killed the boys and girls, kill the germ and if the germ didn't have the fever how could it give the fever; how could a thing give a thing it didn't have? The doctor said: 'Nobody knows but God.'

The book contains four pictures of the little mald, but perhaps the most faschating is the one where she is classed in her grandfuther's arms, with her bonny face nestled against his snowy beard. Underneath is the significant inscription: "The Author and Her Publisher."

enthusiasm shining in her snapping, black eyes.

The people in the pretty village of Leeds Centre, Me., have watched with some interest the restoration to complete health of Mrs. W. L. Francis, wife of the postmaster. So general were the comments on this interesting case that the writer who visited Mrs. Francis and learned from her that the statements regarding her troubles and her subsequent extrication therefrom are entirely true. All of her neighbors know what has been the ag-acy that has performed this cure, but that others may be been fitted by her experience, Mrs. Francis ans concented to allow her story to appear in print.

nted by her experience. Mrs. Francis has concented to allow her story to appear in print.

"If there is anything on earth that I dread more than another," she said, "It is to see my name in the papers. But in this case I conquer my repugnance and give publicly the same credit to the savior of my life as I would to one who had dragged me from a death beneath the waves. In fact, I have extelled my preserver so enthusiastically and unreserved; have sought out sufferers and recommended the remedy to so many friends and acquaintances that already my neighbors jocularly call me. Pink Pilis Francis." But really, my recovery is something that I consider won-derful. I know that there are so many testimonials of medicine in the papers nowadays that people do not pay as much heed as formerly, but I do wish folks who are suffering would remember that what I say comes right from the heart of a woman who feels that she had a new lease of happy life given to her. "Eleven years ago I was afflicted with nervous prostration. My existence until two years ago was one of dragging misery. Anyone in the village will tell you of my condition. My blood seemed exhausted from my veins and month after month I grew weaker. I was able to undertake only the lightest homenments. During all these sorry months and years I was under the care of this doctor and that, but their medicines helped me only spasmodically, and then I fell into relapses more prostrating than ever. "In the night I used to be awakened doctor and that, but their medicines helped me only spasmodically, and then I fell into relapses more prostrating than ever.

"In the night I used to be awakened by the most excruciating pains in my heart and side, and was obliged to use pellets of powerful medicine that the doctor gave me for relief in such attacks. At list my condition became 80 grave that I went out only infrequently. We live up stairs, you notice, over my husband's store, and in descending the stairway I frequently was obliged to sort of fall and side over the steps in order to descend, such was the strain on my system resulting from even this slight exertion. Occasionally I visited the neighbors, but I was obliged to set and rest to recover breath while assending any elevation. In short, it did not seem that I could live, such was my complete physical prostration.

"One day I saw an advertisement of Dr. Williams Pink Pills for Pale Poople, and although my faith in remedies was weak by that time, I sent for a box and tried them. That was two years ago. Now I call myself a well woman. Isn't It wonderful?

"I haven't had one of those excrucing pains in the heart for a year and half. Why, even the first box of pills helped me. I can walk miles now; can do my work easily; have gained in weight constantly, and you would scarcely believe it, but a little while ago I was examined for endownent life linsurance and was accepted unhesitatingly after a careful examination by the physician.

"Do you wonder that I'm shouting Pink Pills' all through our village? I haven't taken any of the remedy for some months for it has complety built me up, but at the first sign of trouble I know to what refuge to flee.

Last year my aunt, Mrs. M. A. Blossom, of Dixfield, P. O., was here visiting me. She was suffering from lack of vitality and heart trouble, but she was skeptical about my remedy that I was so enthusiastically advocating. At little while later I received a letter from her and in it she said, I am cured, thanks to God and Pink Pills'. She also wrote tha wrote that her husband had been prostrated but had been restored by the remedy.

"We feel up this way that such a sovereign cure cannot be too widely known. That is the only reason why I allow my name to be used in this connection. I know also that by personally recommending them I have helped many of my friends back to health, for I never let an opportunity pass when a word of counsel may direct some one. One of the persons to whom Mrs. Francis recommended Pink Pills is station agent, C. H. Foster, of Leeds Centre, and the reporter found him patrolling the platform awaiting the arrival of the morning train. Mr. Poster, who is one of the most trustworthy, capable and energetic men in the employ of the Maine Central railroad, apeared in unusually good health and spirits and we made inquiry as to the cause. "Do you know," replied he, "I think I've made a discovery, or at least Mrs. France has for me. I have been in poor health for a long time with a heart trouble variously complicated. We have been so fully interested in Mrs. Francis' wonderful recovery that I at once determined to give the medicine recommended a thorough test. So, about two months ago, I bought the first box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Only two months, please note, yet already I am so much improved, so much better able to fulfull my duties, so sanguine that I am on the road to recovery, that I feel like a me man.

to fulfill my duties, so sanguine that I am on the road to recovery, that I feel like a new man.

"I can now walk without the fatigue I once experienced, my heart affection appears to be relieved, and I have joined the Pink Pills Hand in our community.

Mr. Foster commenced taking the pills at a time when he was completely prostrated, after he had suffered such a severe attack, of heart trouble that it was necessary to carry him home from his office. Since then he has faithfully improving, so much so as to excite his enthusiasm and his gratitude.
